289 A lot of strange figures of gods, men, and animals; of Chinese manufacture, and mostly of grotesque designs. Formerly the property of Chan Laisun, Chinese Commissioner of Education at Springfield, Mass.: worn as dress ornaments by himself and family. When recalled he was compelled to part with everything available, and these were sold to a jeweller at Springfield; silver gilt; unique collection. 14 pieces.

290 Fragment of Chain Armor of the 16th century; dug up in Vermont; and Tree Toad mummy. 2 pieces.

291 Declaration of Independence; view of the signing; facsimile signatures of the signers; copper, silvered. 7 x 9 inches.

292 Puzzle Box; 4½ inches long.

292*a* Silver Cigarette Case, of Mexican workmanship; both sides ornamented with rich chasing, and in the centre of each side a Mexican landscape; the top of Abelona shell, and in the centre a sapphire, massive and elegant.

PISTOLS.

The extreme length from muzzle to butt, is given in inches. Nearly every one is in perfect, or superior condition.

293 Brass barreled and brass mounted bell muzzled Pistol; engraved lock; bears date 1799, though the style is of a much earlier period; a rare and desirable example. 13½ inches.

294 Steel barreled, brass mounted Pistol; bears the mark of Dublin Castle, and crown and monogram of George I.; flint lock, and very ingenious arrangement of the ramrod. 15½ inches.

295 Steel barreled and steel mounted Pistol; octagon barrel, elegantly damascened and rifled; one side is elaborately engraved; rose wood stock; a very costly and beautiful pistol. 14½ inches.

296 Steel barreled Pistol; iron barrel, brass trimmings, flint lock; London made, of about 1800. 15 inches long.

297 Japanese Pistol; steel barrel; beautifully inlaid with silver and gold, in the characteristic Japanese style; match lock; mounted in brass, and of elegant workmanship, and most rare. 13½ inches.

298 Pocket Pistol; steel barrel, brass mountings, flint lock, carved stock: more than a century old. 6½ inches.

299 Iron barreled Pistol: flint lock, brass trimmings, carved stock; made by Wilkes of London. 15½ inches.

300 Immense Horse Pistol; iron barrel, flint lock, brass mounting; ancient; carried by Capt. Johnson, 28th Ga.; engraved 1864, Tarboro, N. C., C. S. A. 17 inch's.

301 Pair of brass barreled and brass mounted Pistols; by Ketland, 1802. 15 inches.

302 London made, brass barreled, and brass mounted Pistol, with silver name plate; flint lock, and ornamented stock: a superior weapon. 14 inches.

303 Pair of very superior German Pistols: elaborately engraved steel barrels, and brass ornaments, flint locks: marked Adolph Otto von Goetz, Cadet der 1 Division; handsome and desirable. 15 inches.

304 Pair of very heavy brass barreled Pistols; flint lock, brass trimmings; made by Hopkins of London, period of 1775. 13¼ inches.

312 An elegant Colt's Revolver; silver plated and silver trimmed, the cylinder gilt and engraved with a naval scene, one side of the stock inlaid with an anchor, the other with a figure of a marine or perhaps a pirate. This pistol formerly belonged to Raphael Semmes, as shown by a silver plate in the stock, engraved "Raphael Semmes, Captain of the C. S. N. Privateer Alabama, 1862"; as perfect as when it left the factory. Length 14 inches.

JAPANESE AND CHINESE ARMS, IMPLEMENTS, ETC.

313 Pair of Japanese War Bows; 7½ feet long, leather covered, wound, and laequered; though of great age in perfect order and retaining all of their wonderful elasticity, with gilt papier mache quiver, containing six long metal-pointed arrows, together with frame for packing and carrying them on the march.

314 Three War Arrows; metal-pointed: like the last described.

315 Japanese Short Sword: shark skin scabbard, beautifully mottled, with silk cord for suspension; in the scabbard a knife with ornamented bronze handle, the handle of the sword wound with silk, under which appear ornaments in gold or gilt. Length 28 inches.

316 Japanese Two-handed Sword: lacquered scabbard, handle wound with silk, ornaments inserted; a formidable weapon, nearly 4 feet in length and well adapted to its use as an executioner's sword.

317 Pair of Chinese Shoes; satin, with leather soles an inch thick; new.

318 Pair of Chinese Shoes; cloth, thick leather soles.

319 Japanese Tobacco Pipes; a variety. 24 pieces.

320 Japanese Pipes; brass and bamboo, fine. 4 pieces.

321 Japanese Pipe; bronze and bamboo, very fine.

322 Japanese Paper, used as votive offerings at funerals and on other occasions; some of gold and silver, some pictured and representing cloth. 5 large bundles.

323 Beads of Agalmatolite, carved in Japan; rare and curious. 61 pieces.

324 Japanese Card Receiver: agalmatolite, very fine, a trifle injured.

325 Box of Derbyshire Spar, and another. 2 pieces.

326 Two curious carvings, one of the dog Fo in agalmatolite.

327 Chinese carving, taken from the Emperor's Palace at Pekin, 1855.

328 Japanese Paper Knife; bronze, very fine.

329 Carved Bone Case filled with Jack straws.

330 Chinese Razor; of wonderful construction.

331 Japanese Boxes; carved from nut shells, in form of a shrimp. 2 pieces.

332 Package of Japanese Envelopes; different designs.

333 Chinese barber's Shears; should go with the razor.

334 Chinese Idol. Taken from a temple at Pekin, erected more than a thousand years ago, the idol itself believed to be cotemporary with the temple. This figure is said to have been known throughout China as the Princess of Fashion, or Goddess of Plenty, before which for ages young people paid their devotions prior to marriage. The idol stands about 4 ft. and 6 inches high, is finely carved and richly ornamented, and is in nearly perfect order, except that the hands have become loosened: without doubt the most valuable object of its kind in this country.

335 East Indian palm leaf Brush; bead ornamented handle.

336 Japanese Card Receiver; palm leaf.

337 Japanese Baskets and Boxes; bamboo. 7 pieces.

338 Japanese Carpenter; figure in costume, 6 inches high.

339 Japanese Fiddle; a curiosity.

340 Large Japanese Box, top of straw and silk; figure of a lady.

341 Japanese Umbrella and Parasol. 2 pieces.

342 Japanese Tooth Powder. 9 boxes.

MODERN INDIAN ARMS, IMPLEMENTS AND DRESSES.

343 Old Apache War Bow, 5½ feet long, with quiver containing twenty-five arrows, pointed with metal, stone, bone, glass, and obsidian; the quiver belonging with this bow was long since eaten by moths; this one is new of Indian tanned buckskin and highly ornamented; clean and in perfect order.

344 Apache War Club, length 20 inches; a slung shot with long handle, the ball of stone or metal, diameter nearly 3 inches, all covered with raw hide and ornamented with brass studs.

345 Apache Sword Lance, 10 feet in length; handle of light wood, the blade a sword taken from U. S. soldiers; old, and being no longer in use, very rare.

346 Another, of same style; longer blade, and of better finish.

347 Another; same style and material, but somewhat shorter, with shank of the sword broken.

348 A fourth example, with still shorter blade and handle; length about 8 feet. It is now impossible to obtain any of these lances from the Western Indians.

349 Navajoe Bow, with quiver containing twenty-five arrows, all with keen metal tips; the quiver and bow case are of buckskin, tanned, painted, and ornamented in the highest style of Indian art; clean and nice.

350 Papago Indian Hunting Pouch; made from the head of the mountain lion, the ears left on, and the eyes represented by buttons: with deep fringe of buckskin; large silver plated ornament, strap and buckle; a very handsome article of Indian costume.

351 Ancient stone Battle Axe; found in Arizona, on the Rio Gila; the blade is 7 inches long, and fastened by thongs of raw hide to a long wooden carved handle having a large knob at the end. The blade of this axe is in form wholly unlike any stone implement that I have ever before met with or seen represented. I consider this battle axe the most remarkable object in the collection.

352 Stone Axe, or Tomahawk, of small size; handle 15 inches in length, the end carved to represent the head and body of a snake; very interesting, as showing the method of hafting the ordinary stone hatchet.

353 Fine steel Battle Axe; blade 5 inches long, carved handle 3 feet in length, studded with a great number of brass headed nails. This axe was found many years ago by Ed. Schefflien, a prospector, and now a rich mine owner, in the Peloncillo mountains on the Apache lands of Arizona, near to the New Mexico line; a most remarkable weapon, probably of Spanish workmanship.

354 Awl Case of the White Mountain Apaches; beaded and ornamented with bangles.

355 Apache Tobacco Pouch; buckskin, elegantly ornamented with beads, fringe and bangles, with strap for its suspension; rich and rare.

356 Reed Flute of the Pima Indians; carved, and ornamented in colors; a musical instrument primitive in form, but of remarkable construction; length, 27 inches.

357 Dice Sticks of the Pima Indians, having on them various marks, indicating numbers, and are used by the Indians for gambling, being held perpendicularly in the left hand and struck with the right; the game is counted by the position in which they fall.

358 Apache Bow; in buckskin case, with buckskin quiver containing 20 metal-pointed barbed arrows; painted and fringed in the best style of Indian work; the finest in the sale.

359 Apache Boots; buckskin, of Indian workmanship, the soles being of raw hide; the legs are 23 inches long, and the style of the toes is highly recommended to any enterprising shoemaker who desires to introduce a new fashion.

360 Apache Pouch, of raw hide, containing 50 gun flints.

361 Apache Medicine Shield; raw hide and flannel, trimmed with feathers of the wild turkey; diameter of shield 21 inches, length nearly 4 feet.

362 Bridle Reins and Whip in black and white hair; beautifully braided.

363 Kehoe or Pack Basket; carried by the Indian women of Arizona, with strap or band to cover the forehead and poles for its support with horse-hair rope belonging with it, materials, palm leaf and grasses.

364 Willow and Grass Basket in two colors, 18 inches in diameter; very fine.

365 Another, of same size and description, but braided in different figures.

366 Papago Indian Pottery; duck-shaped vessel, red ware ornamented in black; holds about one quart.

367 Another, similar in design and of about the same capacity.

368 Another, of smaller size, without the ornamentation.

369 Another, mate of the preceding.

370 Broad Brimmed Panama Hat; very heavy and fine, ornamented with spangles in gilt and silver, the band composed of a double roll of blue velvet, each roll an inch in diameter, and profusely ornamented with white beads; a really beautiful and very costly hat.

371 Pima Indian Water Bottle; of willow and grass, so closely woven as to hold water; height 11 inches, capacity about 1 gallon.

372 Mask, carved in wood and decorated with white hair; a work of art in its way, and hideous to behold; it was found between Arizona and Sonora, and is undoubtedly the work of the old Yaca Indians; a trifle worm eaten, but in good condition; a distinct Maltese cross carved on the forehead and chin.

373 Apache war dance Hat; trimmed with the plumage of the black eagle; a most elegant and showy piece of head gear, the whole top of the hat being thickly covered with glossy feathers of raven blackness, from the middle of which stand up two long white feathers, that wave with every motion of the wearer's head; it is said that this hat could hardly be duplicated in the whole Indian country.

374 Drinking Cup of horn, imitation of tortoise-shell: handsome and prettily wrought; holds about one pint.

375 Mate to the last in form and size, but differently marked.

376 Toy Olla, or Water Jar of the Papagos Indians.

377 Apache Waistband, for holding gun caps; filled ready for use.

378 Tobacco Pouch, California Indians; made from the foot of an albatross.

379 Rope 25 feet in length; made from the hair of the Pima Indians of Arizona.

380 Squaw's Belt; copper; nearly two in. in width, rude Indian work, with longitudinal openings, worn by the Belle of the Yuma tribe of Indians, a girl about 18 years of age.

381 String of red, white, and black Beads, with tweezers attached, worn by the Apaches, and the tweezers used in plucking the beard.

382 Copper Bracelet, in form of a serpent, found near Hermosillo, Mexico; very rare and a great curiosity.

383 String of Red Berry Beads, worn by the White Mountain Apache Squaws.

384 String of Beads, worn by the Blackfeet Indians of Montana.

385 String of date seed Beads, worn by the Indians of Honduras.

386 Pima Indian Playing Cards; made of raw hide, stretched, dried, cut into oblong pieces of the size of ordinary cards and painted in bright colors, the designs not wholly inartistic; the Indians being able to purchase Mexican cards no longer manufacture these, and they are now exceedingly rare.

387 Another pack of similar workmanship to the last, but the designs are different, being grotesque and monstrous.

388 Another pack; unlike either of the preceding, and peculiar in being on raw hide of double thickness and nearly as stiff as iron. It is said that not a single pack of these cards can now be procured from the Indians.

389 Pouch, with rice hulls for smoking; used by the Indians.

390 Sioux Tobacco Pouch; buckskin, with long fringe and elaborate bead ornaments.

391 Pair of Sioux Moccasins, richly ornamented with colored beads.

392 Apache Moccasins, ornamented with quill work.

393 Moccasins of the Navajo Indians, with ornamental bead work.

394 Bead Ornament, 2 feet long, worn at the waist by some of the Pacific Islanders; rare and curious.

395 Two long strings of colored Beads, bought from the Indians.

396 Carved cocoanut Drinking Cup, made by the South America Indians.

397 Large Knife Case, from the Sioux Indians, covered with beads and bangles.

398 Arrapahoe Indian, Knife Case; fringed and beaded.

399 Indian Head Ornament of an immense number of bone rings, black and white; very curious.

400 Long Indian Box of bone, covered with beads.

401 War Club of the Sioux Indians; a remarkable gun-shaped implement of most savage appearance, thickly studded with brass nails; the blade has seven tallies filed in the edge; length about 2 feet.

402 Tappa Cloth; one a bed-spread; a fine lot. 5 pieces.

403 Large bone Fish-hook; used by the Esquimaux; rare.

404 Bone Carving; Esquimaux work.

404*a* Curious Esquimaux Knife; native workmanship.

405 Grotesque Pipe; carved from bone by the natives of Greenland.

406 A pearl and bone Fish-hook; and polished Agate. 2 pcs.

407 Coronet worn by the Indians of the upper Amazon.

408 Indian bead-work Necklace; moth eaten.

409 Knife and Fork; primitive; a pair.

410 A pair of bark Hats; a hideous Mask; and child's Dress: from the upper Amazon. 4 pieces.

STONE IMPLEMENTS, ETC.

411 Long Pestle from Arizona; implements of this form from the Eastern States are not rare, but in the South and West they are very seldom met with; an uncommonly fine example. Length 21¾ inches.

412 Another long Pestle from Arizona; fine but much worn. Length 11 inches.

413 Polished Grooved Axe from Arizona; edge blunted, showing marks of secondary use. 6½ x 2½ in.

414 Another polished Grooved Axe from the same locality; of unusual form, being very narrow in proportion to its length. 6½ x 2½ in.

415 Larger polished Grooved Axe, Arizona; a fine specimen. 6½ x 3 in.

416 Spear Head, with shank and two projections at each side, from Arizona; a form that I have never before met with. 6½ x 2 in.

417 Adze, Arizona; the upper surface curved inward, and with a depression to receive the end of the handle; the convex side has three grooves for thongs; a form that I have never before seen.

418 A curious Tomahawk-shaped implement: the cutting edge oblique to its length, the head elongated and brought nearly to a point; grooved, a form of most rare occurrence in Arizona.

419 Ring; 3¼ inches in diameter, perforation 1¼ in., grooved around its whole circumference; another very remarkable form from Arizona.

420 Circular flat Stone; diameter 3¾ in., having a depression on each side, but with no marks of wear on the edge; it partakes of the mixed character of discoidal stones and hammer stones, so called; a very rare form.

421 Grooved Axe, from Arizona; partially polished. 5 x 2¾ in.

422 Grooved Axe, Arizona; pecked, but not polished. 5¼ x 3 inches.

423 Grooved Hammer, Arizona; small size, very fine.

424 Small Grooved Axe, Arizona.

425 Aztec Dish, of stone; thrown out at the depth of 14 feet from the surface in digging a well at Tucson, Arizona; this cup has a diameter of 3½ in., and its whole surface except the bottom is covered with carving in high relief; a rare and most valuable relic.

COIN SALE CATALOGUES.

An interest is felt by many persons in collecting the Catalogues of American Coin Sales, second only to their interest in the coins themselves. Many years ago I purchased the stocks and remainders in the hands of the principal dealers, and have recently bought a great number, including some of the early and rare issues, together with illustrated and extra paper copies, so that I am now able to furnish to order, priced or plain, the Catalogue of almost any Coin Sale that has taken place in the United States within the last twenty-five years.

My collection comprises some not mentioned by Attinelli, and several prior to the Watkins Sale, which he supposed was the first made here. Of Catalogues of my own sales I am unable to furnish complete sets, but can supply all but two or three. For copies of my Catalogues of June 27, 1860, Sale at Boston; Dec. 23, 1863, Sale in Providence; and Oct. 28, to Nov. 2, 1877, the Mickley Sale in New York; I will pay a liberal price in cash. A list of my Coin Sales, a pamphlet of 8 pages, giving an account of thirty-four sales, time, place, amount, etc., will be mailed to any address on receipt of twenty-five Cents.

A copy of Attinelli's work, giving particulars of nearly every sale ever held in the United States prior to 1876, for sale in sheets, price $5. Probably not more than twenty-five copies of this book are in the hands of collectors, and none are on sale. It is invaluable to the collector of Coin Catalogues.

Prices of Catalogues quoted on application.
